Licensed Rights

The Publisher hereby authorises the Publishers Licensing Society Limited (PLS) to license the Publisher's Repertoire through Collective Licences; in particular through The Copyright Licensing Agency Limited (CLA). The Licensed Rights are granted only to the extent that the Publisher owns or controls them and to the extent required for the Collective Licences. In order to opt in to the Optional Collective Digital Licences the Publisher must give its informed consent. Optional Collective Licences are included at the Default Settings, unless otherwise specified by the Publisher, subject to any amendment or modification that the Publisher may have made. The Licensed Rights also include licences in countries outside the UK where copying has been authorised, and with which CLA has reached reciprocal agreements.

Consideration

In consideration of the rights granted to PLS, the Publisher is entitled to receive a share of the fees collected under Collective Licences in accordance with the distribution rules set out in the PLS Distribution Charter.

Mandate Terms and Conditions

The Publisher's Mandate to PLS to exercise the Licensed Rights is given subject to the terms set out on this Mandate Form. The PLS General Terms and Conditions are also included in the PLS Mandate Form. Please also refer to the PLS Mandate Handbook and the PLS Publisher Information Form which are for information only. This Mandate replaces any previous mandates given to PLS by the Publisher. However, granting this new Mandate will not affect any rights accrued to the Publisher under any previous mandates that remain outstanding when this new Mandate is granted, including any due but unpaid net fees.
